

VISION: an aged care system where every person receives kind, compassionate, high-quality care that promotes their rights, identity and independence.

PURPOSE: to ensure integrity and accountability of the aged care system through independent, informed oversight. We drive meaningful change by calling out serious barriers and holding up to the light models that would create the meaningful improvement needed to achieve this vision

Outcomes

Drive meaningful change to achieve rights-based, high-quality care

Build trust and confidence in the aged care system

Promote system-wide transparency

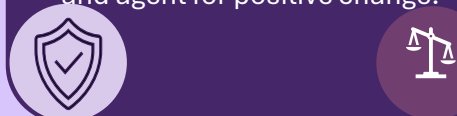

Illustrate how government can achieve equitable, person-centred aged care

Objectives

Our work calls out the systemic problems and opportunities that lead to the greatest change in aged care

We maximise the influence of our work. We build and cement a strong, trusted profile in both the aged care sector and the public landscape as an oversight body and agent for positive change.

Our work highlights experiences of those most vulnerable, and who face the greatest barriers to equity in the upholding of their rights.

Our way of working and our aims are well known

We are a safe, welcoming, capable organisation of deep integrity, that people love to work for.
